

SERVE YOUR COUNTRY
SECURE YOUR FUTURE

DMGS.ORG

1620 L Street NW
Suite 700
Washington, D.C. 20036

— WASHINGTON, D.C. —

WELCOME

---

AT DMGS, YOU ARE IN COMMAND OF YOUR EDUCATION

With three M.A. and two certificate programs, DMGS is agile and motivated to serve its students. TAILOR a challenging curriculum to meet your career goals, LEARN from leading national security experts, and PREPARE for a career in national security.

VISIT

Contact ADMISSIONS@DMGS.ORG to schedule a campus tour!

ADMISSION PROCESS

DMGS has ROLLING ADMISSION.

Visit DMGS.ORG/ADMISSIONS to start the application process.

FULL MERIT-BASED SCHOLARSHIPS AVAILABLE

ADVANCE YOUR CAREER

TAKE THE NEXT STEP

---

Daniel Morgan Graduate School of National Security (DMGS) is a small, nonprofit higher education institution located in Washington, DC.

MISSION

DMGS educates and prepares future leaders to develop actionable solutions to global and domestic security challenges.

WHY DMGS?

- Full scholarships available
- Scholar-practitioner faculty
- Small class sizes
- Strategic location in the nation's capital
- Career advancement
- Network with the national security community
- Co-curricular experiences

WE ARE DMGS

ADVANCING U.S. INTERESTS

---

DMGS' M.A. in Managing Disruption & Violence (MDV) is a communications program that provides a specialized approach to national security communications. The program provides the practical understanding, processes and concepts needed to manage and evaluate the development, implementation and impact of communication strategies. Its focus is on the unique dynamics of a large organization facing potential or existing adverse consequences by disruptive or violent behaviors from external groups. It allows practitioners to be proactive or respond defensively depending on the circumstances.

MDV prepares a graduate to excel and BE A THOUGHT LEADER FOR NATIONAL SECURITY AGENCIES and departments, law enforcement organizations, civil governance bodies and corporations who are faced with increasingly complex problems brought about by state and non-state actors, political insurgencies, terrorism and activism.

MANAGING DISRUPTION & VIOLENCE

---

DMGS' M.A. in National Security enhances students' skills to ANTICIPATE THE TRENDS in the global environment; the short-and long-term aims, strategies, instruments and vulnerabilities of competitors; and to identify the resulting specific opportunities – in a given region or globally – to advance U.S. interests. The program emphasizes a 21st century understanding of national security, allowing students to master emerging topics of cybersecurity and transnationalism in addition to traditional subjects of state power and armed conflict.

The program also covers U.S. government organizational and institutional arrangements, and the authorities of individual agencies to implement policy. In addition, the tensions between national security policy and practices and liberal democracy will be considered – and how the U.S. and other democracies have sought to reconcile them.

ANTICIPATING SECURITY CHALLENGES

---

This program focuses on the cutting edge missions, methods, and organizational arrangements of intelligence in general, and U.S. intelligence in particular. It focuses on the four major elements of intelligence – COLLECTION, ANALYSIS, COUNTERINTELLIGENCE, AND COVERT ACTION – and their application abroad. Similarities and differences with intelligence inside the U.S. are also included.

The program also focuses on the interdependence of the symbiotic relationships between the elements of intelligence and interrelationships with other national security practitioners at many levels of policymaking and implementation – from grand strategy formulation to national security communications.